

THE BRIEF SHEET

The other burning issues* of the week

DAME JOAN WAGED WAR ON A PUDDLE

Pity the poor councillor to encounter Dame Joan Collins wearing her UGGs. The incensed 82-year-old is waging a one-woman war on Westminster Council due to a puddle outside her London home that is making her journey from pavement to taxi impossible – nay perilous – in her standard-duty stilettos.

*AT GRAZIA TOWERS

RECEPTIONIST SENT HOME FOR WEARING FLAT SHOES

A temp was ordered home from UK financial firm, Price Waterhouse Cooper, for refusing to wear high heels. Nicola Thorp, 27, was dismissed, unpaid by her agency, Portico, after turning up for work in flats. She has since launched a petition urging Parliament to make it illegal for women to be forced to wear high heels at work. Don't tell Joan...

GLAM-MA REINVENTED CONTOUR GOALS

Kim Kardashian take note – for when it comes to 'contour goals', 80-year-old Livia Flego has got it nailed. The 'Glam-ma' pretty much did break the internet last week after her make-up artist granddaughter Tea posted pictures of her transformation.

Words: Emily Maddack. Photos: Instagram/@leafflego, Shutterstock/Getty, Adam Gray/SWNS.com, Twitter/@jancollinsbe, Rex Features

'SECOND SKIN' HERALDED AS NEW BOTOX

US scientists have invented an invisible film that can be applied to your own skin for 24 hours to reduce the appearance of wrinkles. 'Potentially it's a really good non-invasive innovation,' says Harley Street aesthetic doctor David Jack. 'It could make skin look better in an instant – almost like a Wonderbra for the face.'

WEDDING GIFT REJECTED BY BRIDE

A 'gobsmacked' guest caused a viral storm by revealing her £100 gift had been returned with the message, 'Your contribution didn't seem to match the warmth of your good wishes on our big day. If you want to send any adjustment it would be thankfully received.'

STAT

75 hrs

London's female workers clock up 75 hours a year more than the rest of the country's female workforce